CM DK Shivakumar moves to defuse crisis after Reddy's resignation

Chief Minister assures resolution as portfolio dispute rocks new Cabinet

"Nothing to worry. He is a great friend. We are the closest friends among the Cabinet. We will sort out the problem.
-DK Shivakumar, Chief Minister

"I am resigning from my post because I cannot work against conscience. How long can I tolerate this humiliation? "I am still in the Congress party. I have been with the party for the past 53 years."
-Ramalinga Reddy, Congress MLA

BENGALURU

Karnataka Chief Minister D. K. Shivakumar on Friday sought to calm tensions within the newly formed state Cabinet after senior Congress leader Ramalinga Reddy resigned from his ministerial post over portfolio allocation.

Reddy announced his resignation earlier in the day, expressing disappointment over being assigned the Major and Medium Irrigation Department instead of the Bengaluru Development portfolio, which he claimed had been promised to him.

Attempting to defuse the situation, Shivakumar described Reddy as one of his closest friends and assured that the issue would be resolved through dialogue.

Reddy, however, said he could no longer tolerate what he described as humiliation and decided to step down rather than work against his conscience.

The veteran leader clarified that he remains committed to the Congress party and has no intention of quitting the organisation.

Meanwhile, Karnataka minister Priyank Kharge expressed confidence that senior party leaders would resolve the dispute soon.

The episode marks the first significant challenge for the Shivakumar-led government, which assumed office only this week.

K. H. MUNIYAPPA SEEKS REVIEW OF PORTFOLIO ALLOCATION

Hours after senior minister Ramalinga Reddy expressed displeasure over portfolio allocation in the D.K. Shivakumar government, Food and Civil Supplies Minister K.H. Muniyappa also publicly voiced his dissatisfaction, urging the Congress leadership to reconsider the distribution of departments. Muniyappa said seniority had not been adequately taken into account while assigning portfolios. A veteran Congress leader with a political career spanning nearly five decades, he noted that several senior legislators, including himself and Ramalinga Reddy, deserved greater consideration. The minister said he had sought portfolios such as Social Welfare, Agriculture or Irrigation, arguing that these departments would provide greater opportunities to serve the public, particularly farmers and vulnerable sections of society.

CM admits promise to Ramalinga Reddy, says high command took final call

Chief Minister D. K. Shivakumar on Friday acknowledged that he had earlier promised the Bengaluru Urban Development portfolio to senior Congress leader Ramalinga Reddy, but said the final decision on portfolio allocation was taken by the party high command. Speaking to reporters in Bengaluru, Shivakumar said he had personally tried to secure the portfolio for Reddy, considering his long political experience and deep association with Bengaluru. However, the party leadership ultimately decided to assign the department to Krishna Byre Gowda. The Chief Minister said decisions taken by senior party leaders must be respected and indicated that there was little scope for revisiting the allocation. Addressing concerns raised by minister K. H. Muniyappa over his portfolio, Shivakumar said the matter had been discussed with the party leadership.

RBI considers introducing plastic currency notes in India

NEW DELHI

The Reserve Bank of India (RBI) is considering the introduction of polymer, or plastic, currency notes in the country, RBI Governor Sanjay Malhotra announced on Friday.

Speaking about the proposal, Malhotra said the plan is currently in its preliminary stages and is being examined by the central bank.

If implemented, polymer notes would replace or supplement traditional paper currency notes that are currently in circulation.

The move comes as cash usage has witnessed a resurgence despite the rapid growth of digital payment systems. Polymer notes are considered more durable than paper notes, have a longer lifespan and are generally more resistant to wear and tear, moisture and counterfeiting. The RBI had first explored the possibility of introducing plastic currency nearly a decade ago.

Annamalai quits BJP, launches new political movement 'We The Leaders'

CHENNAI

Former Tamil Nadu BJP president K. Annamalai on Friday resigned from the primary membership of the BJP and announced the launch of a new political movement called "We The Leaders", citing differences with the party leadership over political strategy in the state.

The resignation was formally accepted by BJP national president Nitin Nabin after consultations with senior party leaders in New Delhi. In a video message posted on social media, Annamalai described his decision as "a new beginning" and said he wanted to part ways with the party respectfully.

A former IPS officer who entered politics in 2020, Annamalai said his objective was to create a new model of governance centred on ethics, leadership and grassroots empowerment. He said the new initiative would initially function as a people's movement before eventually evolving into a political party capable of contesting the next Tamil Nadu Assembly elections.

Reflecting on his political journey, Annamalai said his six years in the BJP had provided valuable experience and opportunities.

'We The Leaders' to Focus on Ethics and Grassroots Leadership

Annamalai said "We The Leaders" would be a dynamic people's movement driven by new ideas and ideologies. The initiative aims to build a grassroots cadre network, train ordinary citizens for public leadership and promote ethical politics. He also announced plans to establish a Centre for Politics and Ethics in Coimbatore, with the long-term goal of transforming the movement into a full-fledged political party ahead of future elections.

Rahul alleges Great Nicobar project puts 'Greed Over Green'

NEW DELHI

Leader of the Opposition Rahul Gandhi on Friday criticised the Centre's proposed Great Nicobar Island development project, alleging that it prioritises commercial interests over environmental protection and the welfare of indigenous communities.

Marking World Environment Day, Gandhi released a 16-minute video based on his visit to the Andaman and Nicobar Islands in April and appealed to citizens, especially young people, to support a campaign under the slogan "Green Over Greed".

The Congress leader claimed that the project, which includes a transshipment port, airport and tourism infrastructure, would threaten ancient rainforests, coral reefs and biodiversity in one of India's most ecologically sensitive regions.

GOVERNMENT FACES DISSENT

Cong facing rebellion within days of govt formation: Ashoka

BENGALURU

"With just one-and-a-half years left for the elections, the rebellion has already started and it is going to turn into a volcano. There are signs that many more wickets could fall in the days ahead."
-R Ashoka, Leader of Opposition

Leader of the Opposition R. Ashoka on Friday alleged that internal rebellion had already erupted within the Congress government, claiming dissatisfaction over portfolio allocation had exposed deep divisions in the ruling party just days after the swearing-in ceremony.

Speaking to reporters, Ashoka said Chief Minister D.K. Shivakumar had failed to honour promises made to senior leaders, particularly regarding the allocation of the Bengaluru Urban Development portfolio. Referring to the resignation offered by Ramalinga Reddy, Ashoka alleged that the Chief Minister had gone back on his word.

He claimed that dissatisfaction was visible among several ministers and cited reported objections raised by senior. According to Ashoka, the government was struggling to maintain internal cohesion and was in no position to effectively respond to the Opposition in the Assembly.

The BJP leader also criticised the government's governance record, alleging that promises related to Bengaluru's development had not been fulfilled. He said the city continued to face issues such as poor roads and garbage management despite repeated assurances about transforming Bengaluru into a world-class city. Ashoka further claimed that the Congress government could face greater instability in the coming months, alleging that more leaders could openly express dissatisfaction. He also questioned the feasibility of launching new welfare schemes amid financial pressures, including pending pension liabilities.

In a series of posts on social media, Ashoka described internal conflict as a constant feature of the Congress party and sarcastically remarked that senior Congress leaders from Delhi may need to stay permanently in Bengaluru to manage recurring disputes.

Pre-SIR mapping reaches 72% in Bengaluru; door-to-door voter verification from June 30

Despite opposition, officials achieved notable progress ahead of voter verification drive.

CH NEWS, BENGALURU

With the Special Intensive Revision (SIR) of electoral rolls scheduled to begin in Karnataka on June 20, Greater Bengaluru Authority (GBA) Chief Commissioner and District Election Officer Maheshwar Rao said the city has achieved 72 per cent progress in the crucial pre-SIR mapping exercise.

The preparatory work involves mapping the 2025 electoral rolls with the 2002 electoral database to streamline the revision process and reduce the burden on voters during verification. Rao said Bengaluru has 8,023 polling booths, and booth-level officers (BLOs) will be deployed at each location. Around 1,600 BLO supervisors will oversee the exercise, with a majority of the BLOs drawn from government schools.

The house-to-house voter verification drive will commence on June 30 and continue until July 27. During the exercise, BLOs will distribute enumeration forms that voters must complete and submit to ensure their names are retained in the upcoming draft electoral roll.

If a voter is unavailable during the visit, officials will leave the form at the residence and make at least three attempts to collect the completed document. Each form will contain the name and contact details of the BLO to facilitate communication and coordination with residents.

Following the verification process, the draft electoral roll will be published on August 5. Citizens will be allowed to file claims and objections until September 4, while the final electoral roll is scheduled for publication on October 7.

A meeting with representatives of various political parties was held to discuss the SIR process. During the interaction, several party leaders raised concerns over incomplete mapping in Bengaluru. While many rural districts in Karnataka have reportedly achieved more than 95 per cent mapping, the progress within GBA limits remains comparatively lower.

Speaking at the meeting, A Arun Prasad, State General Secretary of the Bahujan Samaj Party, said incomplete mapping could force voters to produce additional documents during verification visits. He observed that the process would have been more convenient had all voters been mapped in advance.

Meanwhile, Prabhu Bosco, General Secretary of the National People's Party, suggested establishing dedicated help desks at corporation offices and BangaloreOne centres. He said helpline numbers alone may not be sufficient due to the expected volume of queries and that physical assistance centres would help residents submit documents and track their SIR status more effectively.

Yellow Line not only cuts travel time, but boosts commuter fitness

CH NEWS, BENGALURU

Bengaluru Metro's Yellow Line, connecting RV Road and Bommasandra through the city's busy tech corridor, is delivering benefits beyond faster travel, with a new study revealing significant improvements in commuters' physical activity, wellbeing and overall quality of life.

The 18.9-km corridor, which has dramatically reduced travel time from nearly two-and-a-half hours by road to around 30 minutes, has encouraged thousands of commuters to shift from private vehicles and cabs to Metro services. According to a study conducted by the Indian Institute of Science and funded by the Biocon Foundation and Electronics City Industries' Association, many commuters are now walking 10 to 15 minutes daily as part of their journey to and from Metro stations.

Positive lifestyle changes

MANY RESPONDENTS REPORTED FEELING LESS TIRED AND MORE IN CONTROL OF THEIR DAILY SCHEDULES. THEY ALSO CITED IMPROVED WORK-LIFE BALANCE, GREATER SOCIAL INTERACTION DURING TRAVEL, FEWER DELAYS, LOWER FATIGUE LEVELS AND INCREASED ENERGY FOR PERSONAL AND FAMILY RESPONSIBILITIES. THE FINDINGS SUGGEST THAT EFFICIENT PUBLIC TRANSPORT CAN CONTRIBUTE SIGNIFICANTLY TO HEALTHIER URBAN LIFESTYLES.

The study surveyed 600 commuters between July 2025 and February 2026. Researchers first conducted a baseline survey before the Yellow Line's inauguration in August 2025 and followed it up with a phone survey six months later involving the same participants.

Before operations began, 83 per cent of respondents had indicated their willingness to switch to the Metro. At the time, 38 per cent relied on two-wheelers, 25 per cent used cabs, 21 per cent travelled in private cars and the remainder depended on public road transport.

Researchers found that 58 per cent of respondents were not meeting the World Health Organization's recommended minimum level of physical activity, defined as 600 Metabolic Equivalent of Task (MET) minutes per week. Health concerns were also common, with 18 per cent reporting diabetes, 15 per cent hypertension and 4.6 per cent respiratory illnesses.

The shift to Metro travel has helped address some of these concerns. The study noted increased physical activity through walking, improved mental wellbeing and reduced exposure to air pollution. Former two-wheeler users, who previously faced high levels of PM2.5 pollution during long commutes, now travel in climate-controlled Metro coaches with minimal direct exposure to outdoor pollutants.

ED arrests Deepak Cables MD in Rs 899 crore bank fraud case

CH NEWS, BENGALURU

The Enforcement Directorate (ED) has arrested K Venkateshwara Rao, Managing Director of Deepak Cables India Limited, in connection with an alleged bank fraud and money laundering case involving Rs 899.35 crore borrowed from a consortium of banks led by State Bank of India.

The arrest was made under the provisions of the Prevention of Money Laundering Act (PMLA). Following his arrest, Rao was produced before the ED Special Court in Bengaluru. The agency sought his custodial interrogation for further investigation, and the court remanded him to ED custody for 10 days.

The case originates from an FIR registered by the Central Bureau of Investigation against Deepak Cables India Limited, its Managing Director and others. According to the allegations, the company obtained loans worth Rs 899.35 crore from an SBI-led consortium and subsequently diverted the funds through illegal transactions.

The ED said its investigation revealed that the accused used multiple entities to furnish fake corporate guarantees and carried out sham transactions to secure additional loans. Investigators alleged that existing liabilities were concealed and forged documents were created to obtain fresh credit facilities from banks.

According to the agency, a substantial portion of the loan amount was diverted to several entities allegedly controlled by Rao. These transactions are suspected to be part of a larger conspiracy to siphon off bank funds.

As part of the probe, ED officials conducted searches at the company's premises, Rao's residence, office and other associated locations on May 21 and May 29.

CH NEWS, BENGALURU

Rajiv Gandhi University of Health Sciences (RGUHS), in association with Rotary Bengaluru Samruddhi, celebrated World Environment Day 2026 with a massive walkathon at Lalbagh and launched the "One Student, One Sapling" campaign to promote environmental awareness and sustainability.

Addressing more than 4,000 students who participated in the event, Bhagavan B. C. called upon every student to plant at least one sapling and take responsibility for nurturing it. He said the university remains committed not only to academic excellence but also to social responsibility, healthy living and environmental sustainability through various green initiatives.

Highlighting global environmental challenges such as climate change, global warming, water scarcity, biodiversity loss and pollution, he said campaigns like "One Student, One Sapling" are essential to fostering environmental responsibility among the younger generation.

The Vice Chancellor stressed the need to instil respect and love for nature in children and students from an early age. He expressed concern over society's growing disconnect from nature despite rapid technological and economic development. Simple actions such as planting trees, conserving water, reducing plastic use and maintaining cleanliness can collectively create a significant positive impact, he added.

Kona Vamsi Krishna, who participated in the programme, said environmental conservation is the responsibility of every citizen and should become a way of life rather than a one-day observance.

The walkathon began at the West Gate of Lalbagh and passed through key city roads before concluding near the Kempegowda Tower inside the garden. Students carried placards and raised slogans promoting environmental protection throughout the route.

The celebration concluded with students taking selfies with saplings, symbolising their commitment to building a greener and more sustainable future. Other dignitaries, faculty members and Rotary representatives were also present at the event.

HC refuses to quash case over alleged sale of police quarters land

CH NEWS, BENGALURU

The Karnataka High Court has declined to quash criminal proceedings against a man accused of selling land on which police quarters stand in Bengaluru's Malleshwaram area, observing that allowing such actions could set a dangerous precedent for public properties.

A single-judge bench of M Nagaprasanna made the remarks while hearing a petition filed by Srinath Nagaragadde seeking to quash the case registered against him.

During the hearing, Justice Nagaprasanna expressed concern over the allegations and remarked that if such claims were accepted without scrutiny, even the High Court building itself might not be safe in the future. The court also commented on the audacity involved in allegedly selling land on which police quarters have existed for many years.

The matter has been posted for further hearing on June 9.

Counsel for the petitioner argued that the disputed property belongs to the first accused in the case, M R Mahalakshmi, and that she had sold it as her own property.

BOON FOR OFFENDERS

Government offers 50% discount on pending traffic fines

CH NEWS, BENGALURU

In a major relief to vehicle owners, the Karnataka government has announced a 50 per cent discount on fines for old pending traffic e-challan cases and long-pending violations registered by the Transport Department. The move is aimed at encouraging motorists to clear outstanding dues and reducing the backlog of unresolved cases.

An order to this effect has been issued by V.S. Pushpa, Under-Secretary of the Transport Department. According to the notification, the concession will apply to all traffic e-challan cases registered by the Police Department before May 2026 that remain unpaid. In addition, pending cases registered by the Transport Department between 1991 and 2022 will also be eligible for a 50 per cent reduction in penalties.

Vehicle owners can avail themselves of the benefit from June 21 to July 10. During this period, offenders can settle their cases by paying only half of the outstanding fine amount. Officials expect the scheme to encourage thousands of motorists to clear pending violations that have accumulated over several years.

This is not the first time the state government has introduced such a measure. Similar discount schemes in the past have received an overwhelming response from the public. During a special drive conducted in November 2025, around 77.41 lakh traffic violation cases registered by the Police Department were settled. The initiative generated nearly Rs 201 crore in revenue through discounted payments.

The Transport Department also benefited from the earlier scheme, with 902 cases being resolved and fines amounting to approximately Rs 29.66 lakh collected during the concession period.

GBA promises flood-free monsoon in Bengaluru's vulnerable hotspots

GBA upgrades drains in Sai Layout, KR Circle and Silk Board, sets up 24x7 control room and promises quicker response to Bengaluru's monsoon flooding issues.

CH NEWS, BENGALURU

The Greater Bengaluru Authority (GBA) has unveiled an extensive monsoon preparedness plan aimed at preventing flooding in some of Bengaluru's most vulnerable areas, including Sai Layout, KR Circle underpass and the Silk Board junction.

Officials said pre-monsoon works have been completed well ahead of schedule, with a focus on desilting rajakaluves and storm water drains, strengthening drainage networks and improving coordination among civic agencies. The measures are intended to minimise waterlogging and ensure faster response during periods of heavy rainfall.

According to GBA, special attention has been given to the KR Circle underpass, which has witnessed repeated flooding during previous monsoons. Additional pumping systems and upgraded drainage infrastructure have been installed to facilitate rapid removal of rainwater and prevent prolonged inundation.

Sai Layout, one of the city's most flood-prone residential areas, has also been prioritised. Officials said long-pending drainage improvement works are nearing completion and that upgrades to the rajakaluve network will significantly improve water flow in the locality. Authorities expressed confidence that residents are unlikely to experience the severe flooding that has affected the area in recent years.

The Silk Board junction, notorious for traffic congestion and rain-related flooding, has undergone storm water drain improvements and removal of key bottlenecks. Civic authorities believe these measures will help prevent water accumulation on roads and reduce disruption to commuters during intense rainfall.

GBA Chief Commissioner Maheshwar Rao said the authority is committed to ensuring that Bengaluru is better prepared for the monsoon than ever before. He assured citizens that flood-prone areas would receive constant monitoring and immediate attention whenever required.

To strengthen emergency response, the authority has established a 24x7 monsoon control and monitoring system that will track rainfall and its impact across the city in real time. Dedicated teams have been deployed to address complaints related to flooding, blocked drains and rain damage without delay.

Officials said low-lying areas and vulnerable neighbourhoods would remain under close watch throughout the season. With improved planning, upgraded infrastructure and tighter field supervision, GBA expects significantly better rainwater management this year and hopes to avoid the widespread flooding witnessed during previous monsoons.

The authority has urged residents to report any rain-related issues promptly and cooperate with civic teams to ensure smooth monsoon operations across Bengaluru.

High Court Grants Interim Stay on Application of RERA Act to BDA Projects

CH NEWS, BENGALURU

In a significant development concerning urban development and real estate regulation in Bengaluru, the Karnataka High Court has granted an interim stay on the application of the Real Estate (Regulation and Development) Act, 2016 (RERA) to residential layouts and projects formed by the Bangalore Development Authority (BDA) before the enactment of the legislation.

The interim order was passed by a single-judge bench of Justice Suraj Govindaraj while hearing a writ petition filed by BDA through its counsel, challenging a decision of the Karnataka RERA Authority that sought to bring BDA projects under the purview of the RERA Act.

Appearing for the BDA, senior advocate K. Shashikirana Shetty argued that the authority is a statutory body established under the Bangalore Development Authority Act, 1976, and performs functions that go beyond those of a conventional real estate developer. He submitted that BDA is entrusted with planning and developing Bengaluru's urban infrastructure and therefore cannot be equated with private promoters governed by RERA.

The counsel contended that one of the key provisions of RERA requires funds collected from a project to be utilised exclusively for that specific project. However, he argued that such a restriction would not be practical for BDA, which undertakes a wide range of civic and infrastructure works, including the construction of flyovers, underpasses and other public development projects that contribute to the city's overall growth.

He further argued that if the RERA Act were to be applied to BDA projects, it should only cover projects launched after the enactment of the legislation in 2016 and not layouts and residential schemes formed prior to that date.

The BDA also maintained that its role and responsibilities extend far beyond land development and housing projects. Therefore, the authority should not automatically fall within the definition of a "promoter" under Section 2(zk) of the RERA Act, the court was told.

Minister Khader Conducts Surprise Hospital Inspection Hours after Taking Charge

CH NEWS, BENGALURU

In a strong indication of his hands-on approach to governance, Karnataka Health Minister UT Khader paid a surprise visit to a government hospital in Bengaluru late on Thursday night, just hours after being entrusted with the Health Department portfolio.

During the inspection, Khader assessed the functioning of various hospital departments, checked staff attendance records, interacted with hospital authorities and reviewed patient care facilities. The minister also met patients and attendants to gain first-hand insight into the challenges faced by those seeking treatment at government healthcare institutions.

The visit took a serious turn when Khader noticed a pregnant woman sitting on the floor of the hospital premises. Expressing his displeasure, he immediately questioned officials about the situation and directed them to ensure that patients, especially pregnant women and senior citizens, are provided with adequate seating and care.

The minister also found that a few doctors and staff members were absent from duty during the inspection. He warned officials against negligence and stressed the importance of punctuality and accountability in public healthcare services.

"WE MUST CREATE A SAFE AND FEAR-FREE ENVIRONMENT FOR HEALTHCARE WORKERS. ONLY BY WORKING TOGETHER CAN WE IMPROVE THE HEALTHCARE SYSTEM AND SERVE THE PUBLIC EFFECTIVELY."
— UT KHADER, HEALTH MINISTER

Speaking to reporters after the visit, Khader said the inspection was aimed at understanding the ground realities within the hospital system. He said the government wanted to identify operational shortcomings, assess staff attendance during key shifts and understand the difficulties faced by both patients and healthcare workers.

"We are constantly discussing ways to improve the healthcare system and make services accessible to more people. Our intention is not to trouble anyone. We want to take everyone into confidence, understand their concerns and address them effectively," he said.

Khader clarified that there had been no formal complaints regarding the absent doctors. However, he said they would be summoned and warned after their reasons for absence were examined. He added that stricter action would follow if such lapses were repeated.

Minister UT Khader made an unannounced late-night visit to a government hospital in Bengaluru, reviewing staff attendance, patient care and hospital facilities while identifying areas that require immediate improvement.

The minister said that while his schedule may not permit regular visits to every healthcare institution, he would continue conducting inspections whenever possible to gain a clear understanding of conditions on the ground.

Responding to concerns about long waiting times at major government hospitals such as Victoria Hospital, Khader noted that government facilities are obligated to treat every patient who arrives, unlike private hospitals that may have limitations on admissions.

"If a hospital is receiving a large number of patients, it often reflects public confidence in that institution and the quality of services being provided.

These are factors we must consider while planning improvements," he said.

Four Arrested for Kidnapping Former MLC Dayananda Reddy, Demanding Rs 3 Crore

CH NEWS, BENGALURU

Police have arrested four men in connection with the kidnapping of former MLC Dayananda Reddy, who was allegedly abducted at gunpoint and held for ransom before being released unharmed. The accused have been identified as Kerala natives C. Praveen, Romi Martin, P. Adarsh and Ashiq.

According to police, the incident took place late on the night of June 1 near Heelage in Anekal taluk, where Reddy owns the Gold Coin Club. Investigators said the kidnappers intercepted Reddy while he was leaving the club and executed a carefully planned abduction.

The accused, who arrived on a motorcycle, reportedly stopped Reddy's car and approached him with a cotton box, claiming it was a gift. As Reddy attempted to open the vehicle door, the men allegedly forced their way into the car and threatened the driver with a gun. The driver was then instructed to drive in the direction specified by the kidnappers. Two more accomplices followed the vehicle in a red car.

Police said Reddy was later taken to a location near the Attibele KHB layout, where the kidnappers allegedly threatened to kill him. The accused reportedly told him that they had received a contract worth Rs 10 crore to eliminate him.

During the ordeal, Reddy pleaded with the kidnappers not to harm him. The gang then demanded Rs 3 crore in exchange for his life. Reddy reportedly told them he did not have such a large amount readily available and suggested that he could arrange the money through a bank.

The kidnappers eventually released him at Suryanagar Third Stage in the early hours of the following morning before fleeing the scene. After reaching safety, Reddy approached the Attibele police station and lodged a complaint.

Based on the complaint and subsequent investigation, police tracked down and arrested the four accused. Further inquiries are underway to determine whether additional persons were involved in planning or executing the crime.

'Mysuru's son lost the way, now Mysuru's son-in-law must deliver'

MLC criticized Siddaramaiah for misgoverning Mysuru despite being its son hoping CM D. K. Shivakumar leads better remaining term effectively

MYSURU

BJP MLC H. Vishwanath expressed hope that the tenure of the new Chief Minister D.K. Shivakumar, whom he referred to as 'Mysuru's son-in-law,' would bring positive changes not only to Mysuru district but to the entire state.

Addressing a press conference here on Thursday, he said that until now Karnataka had been under the administration of "Mysuru's son" (Siddaramaiah), and now the administration of "Mysuru's son-in-law" had begun. "I hope our district's son-in-law ensures comprehensive development for the state. I believe D.K. Shivakumar will listen to the grievances and concerns of Congress workers," he said.

Taking a swipe at former Chief Minister Siddaramaiah, the MLC said despite being Mysuru's son, he governed the district like "a son who had lost his way." There is a hope that Shivakumar would provide effective leadership during the remaining two years of the government's term and address the shortcomings of the previous administration.

> "Party workers build political parties; leaders are the ones who destroy them. I hope the duo of B.K. Hariprasad and D.K. Shivakumar work together effectively and contribute to the welfare of the state."
> — H. Vishwanath, MLC

Vishwanath described D.K. Shivakumar's rise from an ordinary party worker to the Chief Minister's office as a remarkable achievement and said he is a great organiser. It is heartening that both Shivakumar, who played a crucial role in bringing the Congress to power, and the newly appointed KPCC President B.K. Hariprasad have now been entrusted with important responsibilities.

Vishwanath alleged that a large-scale land mafia is currently operating in Mysuru, with the involvement of some government officials and the new CM must take immediate action against those responsible.

A team of experienced individuals from Mysuru district to provide guidance on the city's development. There must be greater emphasis on tourism and said Mysuru should no longer be known merely as a "retirees' paradise."

"Transform Mysuru into a paradise for young people by creating employment opportunities. Give greater attention to education and healthcare programmes," he advised.

He said many people had perceived the Congress as being anti-Hindu. However Shivakumar seeking the blessings of elders and visiting major religious centres before taking the oath of office has changed the perception.

"His conduct helped dispel that perception among the people and has sent a positive message across the state," he said, commending the Chief Minister's religious outlook.

Responding to the proposed Bidadi township project, Vishwanath cautioned that no government in Karnataka had survived after confronting farmers. The Chief Minister to take farmers into confidence before proceeding with the project.

"Malabar Gold's strong focus on education through CSR commendable"

MYSURU

Regional Joint Director Dr. D.S. Pratima lauded Malabar Gold for allocating a significant portion of its Corporate Social Responsibility (CSR) funds towards education and urged students to make the most of the opportunity and strive for excellence.

Speaking at a scholarship distribution programme organised by the Malabar Charitable Trust here on Thursday, she said education is an ornament for every girl student. Scholarships worth ₹35.66 lakh were distributed to 442 girl students from 52 government and aided colleges in the district. The organisation has earmarked ₹200 crore for CSR initiatives during the current financial year. Its continued commitment to supporting students through scholarships every year is highly commendable," she said. Emphasising the importance of women's education, she noted that educating one woman is equivalent to educating an entire society and urged students to focus more on their studies. While most companies generally spend two per cent of their profits on CSR activities, the Malabar Group is setting an example by allocating five per cent of its profits towards CSR programmes and undertaking meaningful social service.

P. Sharapuddeep, South Zone Head of Malabar Gold & Diamonds, said the Malabar Charitable Trust was established in 1999 and has been dedicating five per cent of the company's profits to social welfare activities.

Nalwadi set an example of democratic governance under monarchy: Baraguru

MYSURU

Senior litterateur Prof. Baraguru Ramachandrappa said that Nalwadi Krishna Raja Wadiyar practised democratic governance within a monarchical system and remains an ideal example of how a ruler should serve the people.

Speaking after releasing the book Nalwadi Krishna Raja Wadiyaru Mattu Adhunika Mysuru during the Nalwadi Krishna Raja Wadiyar Jayanti celebrations organised jointly by the Bengaluru City District Kannada Sahitya Parishat, Mysuru District Kannada Sahitya Parishat and the Kuvempu Institute of Kannada Studies here on Thursday, he said Nalwadi had made immense contributions in the fields of education, society and culture. The religious harmony demonstrated by Nalwadi carries immense relevance even today. What the country needs now is harmony and equality. Elections are only the technical aspect of democracy, while equality, fraternity and philosophical values are its essence and must be implemented in practice.

Expressing concern over the state of historical writing, Baragur said history is passing through a critical phase as people who are not historians are increasingly writing history. The character and integrity of history are being eroded, which is highly dangerous. They need an approach to history that is free from caste, religion, political affiliations and prejudices. Writing history requires integrity, deep commitment, contemporary wisdom and scholarship. Historians today are facing serious challenges because history is being misinterpreted. "If every political party writes its own version of history, true history will lose its authenticity and significance," he warned.

Is Bengaluru air quality getting worse over the years?

KHUSHI REDDY,
BENGALURU

Bengaluru is facing rising air pollution due to rapid city growth, more vehicles, construction work, factory emissions, road dust, and shrinking green spaces.

Though Bengaluru is still seen as less polluted than cities like Delhi, air quality has been getting worse over the years, say experts. Outdoor workers are most exposed as they spend long hours daily in traffic smoke, dust, and vehicle fumes across the city.

Auto driver Imran, who has worked for more than ten years, says the worsening traffic and pollution make his throat dry and causes frequent coughing even after he returns home.

Frequent illness and breathing problems also lead to missed work days and lower income, adding financial pressure on daily wage earners like him. Laxmi, a street vendor in Majestic, starts work early in the morning and works long hours near busy roads to sell snacks. The dust from vehicles settles on her food items and causes irritation in her nose and chest while also reducing customer visits and earnings. She says she works from early morning until midnight and depends on this income alone to support her household.

Noor Fatima Sharif, an environmental activist, has raised concern about poor working conditions faced by outdoor workers in the city. Weak safety measures, lack of protective gear, and irregular jobs leave many workers exposed and vulnerable to illness and even early death. She also says that poor workers often stay silent out of fear of losing their jobs while richer groups receive more attention and support. Bengaluru's air pollution has become an environmental justice issue as essential outdoor workers face the highest risks with the least protection.

Experts say improving public transport, controlling emissions, maintaining roads, and increasing green spaces can help reduce pollution in the city. At the same time, providing masks, health checkups, and safety training for workers can reduce health risks and protect livelihoods.

Doctors warn that long exposure to polluted air in Bengaluru can cause asthma, bronchitis, and other long-term lung diseases, especially due to fine dust particles that enter deep into the lungs. Studies also link air pollution with mental health issues like stress, anxiety, depression, and reduced memory and focus among people living in cities.

Addressing the problem needs strong action from local authorities including strict control of construction dust, regular checks on industries, and better enforcement of emission rules across the city.

Providing support to outdoor workers is equally important. Giving them proper masks, regular health checkups, and safer working conditions can reduce health risks. Awareness programs about air pollution and its dangers can also help workers protect themselves. Clean air efforts, green city planning, and better public transport systems will together improve Bengaluru's environment and quality of life for all residents.

"Prosperity, not mere development, is what we need"

MYSURU

Retired professor Prof. Krishnegowda said that people have become weary of the kind of "development" being projected by governments and stressed that what society truly needs is prosperity, not development.

Speaking at the "Green Mysore – Laksha Vriksha Campaign" organised by H.V. Rajeev Sneha Balaga in association with the Sri Kshetra Dharmasthala Rural Development Project at the Green Mysore Nursery near Bandipalya on the Mysuru-Ooty Road, he expressed concern over the direction in which modern development is heading.

Looking at the damage being caused in the name of development by governments and systems, one feels disgusted, he said and noted that there is not a single flyover in London, yet traffic moves efficiently. Here, they are building flyovers wherever there is congestion, which only encourages more vehicles on the roads. In the process, they are destroying a rich and balanced environment in the name of development.

Excessive greed causing damage

Quoting Father of the nation, Mahatma Gandhi, Prof. Krishnegowda said that nature has the capacity to meet human needs but not human greed. Human desires and consumerism have no limits, and it is impossible to fully assess the environmental damage caused by them. The situation calls for people to become more sensitive towards environmental issues. "In foreign countries, senior officials and ordinary citizens travel in the same buses. In our society, owning a car has become a status symbol. Young people often travel from Mysuru to Bengaluru just to have a cup of coffee without considering the fuel consumed and the environmental pollution caused. Parents should encourage children to ride bicycles and strengthen their health. Simply making them plant saplings should not make us believe we have fulfilled our responsibility towards environmental conservation," he advised.

Obsession with speed, light and noise

Prof. Krishnegowda observed that modern society has developed an unhealthy obsession with speed, light and noise. People cannot even wait for the green signal at traffic junctions and begin moving during the yellow signal. What exactly is achieved by saving two seconds? Is there a need for excessive noise during births, deaths, festivals and celebrations? Creation often happens more profoundly in darkness than in light, but we fail to understand this. They measure the light emitted by a bulb but ignore the heat it generates.

Asianet Suvarna News Editor Ajith Hanumakkanavar said that true environmental conservation lies in allowing nature to function on its own. The best-preserved ecosystems are those untouched by humans. One study suggests that the consumption of milk and diapers by a child up to the age of two-and-a-half years is equivalent to felling nine trees. Human beings are different from other living species because of their ability to adapt and cooperate. Despite extensive space exploration, humanity has not discovered another planet capable of supporting human life. "If we fail to protect the one Earth we have, humanity's survival itself will be threatened. Campaigns such as tree-planting drives may only help postpone an impending environmental catastrophe," he cautioned.

On the occasion, the Mysuru City Corporation distributed 5,000 saplings. Representatives of various organisations were also symbolically presented with saplings.

Among those present were Sri Immadi Murugharajendra Swamiji of Sri Murugharajendra Maha Samsthana Math, Mariyala in Chamarajanagar district, writer Shivappa, retired IFS officer T. Balachandra, Green Mysore and Laksha Vriksha campaign architect H.V. Rajeev, former Mayor B.L. Bhairappa, former Corporation member K.V. Mallesh and others.

The Laksha Vriksha movement, launched in 2018 with the objective of transforming Mysuru into a clean, beautiful and safe city, has been progressing successfully. The campaign aims to ensure breathable air for city residents and is being carried out without any expectation of reward or personal gain.

HPCL CSR initiative strengthens emergency healthcare services

MYSURU

A Basic Life Support (BLS) ambulance donated to the Health Department under the Corporate Social Responsibility (CSR) initiative of Hindustan Petroleum Corporation Limited (HPCL) was dedicated to public service on Thursday by District Health Officer Dr. P.C. Kumaraswamy.

The ambulance was flagged off during a programme held at the premises of the District Health Officer's office in Mysuru. Speaking on the occasion, the DHO said there was a need to further strengthen emergency medical services in the Hunsur region, which is connected by a national highway and witnesses a significant number of road accidents. The additional ambulance service will provide timely assistance to the public.

The new BLS ambulance is equipped with oxygen support systems, a suction machine and other essential life-saving medical equipment. It will help transport patients quickly to the district hospital or higher medical centres during emergencies, he added.

Benefits 2 lakh people

Hunsur taluk has a population of nearly two lakh people, of whom around 50,000 reside within the town limits. Although two ambulances are already in operation, the addition of another ambulance is significant in view of the increasing demand for emergency medical services, Dr. Kumaraswamy said.

Support for Pregnant Women and Newborns

On an average, five to six emergency cases are referred every day from the Hunsur Government Taluk Hospital to Mysuru.

The new ambulance service will facilitate the rapid transportation of pregnant women, newborn babies and children requiring NICU care to the district headquarters. It will play an important role in ensuring round-the-clock emergency healthcare services, he said.

Strengthening Emergency Care

Only primary treatment is available at the Primary Health Centre (PHC) level, while taluk hospitals provide first-level medical care. Patients requiring advanced treatment need to be shifted to district hospitals. Well-equipped ambulance services are therefore essential for transporting such patients from taluk centres to district hospitals.

B Z Zameer Ahmed Khan is a senior Congress MLA in Karnataka holding portfolios such as Housing, Waqf and Minority Welfare with key administrative responsibilities in welfare delivery. Since 2023 his department has focused on large scale housing programmes for economically weaker sections including slum development and low income housing schemes.

Can sustainable fashion reduce textile pollution impact?

RASHIDA AAMIR

Where do clothes that we no longer wear go? Most of the time they end up in landfills. Textile recycling – the process of recovering and reprocessing textiles and giving them a second life – is one solution to this increasing issue. A 2022 paper by Fashion for Good showed that India generates approximately 7,800 kilotonnes of textile waste annually and in a report by CSTEP revealed that the textile industry is the third-largest contributor to dry municipal solid waste, following plastics.

A major factor contributing to textile waste is fast fashion, the mass-production of inexpensive trendy clothing made from synthetic fibers which are worn one or two times before getting discarded. The environmental impacts of fast fashion are high greenhouse gas emissions, heavy water consumption, large-scale textile waste generation, and significant volumes of microfibers entering the oceans each year.

Ruqaiyah Dharnojwala, a senior social worker, shared her experience on discovering textile-to-textile recycling and how it motivated her to start a collection drive in her community. "I was inspired by people converting old scraps into new fabric and wondered if there was a way we could recycle our clothes too." Dharnojwala searched vigorously for a perfect place and came to find 'Sahaas Zero Waste: Textile Recovery Facility', which turns clothes into yarn through the process of 'spinning' and then turns it into a new fabric which can be worn.

Dharnojwala has been running this collection drive for 4 years, when she initially started, "It started in small numbers of people dropping off their clo thes but as more and more people have found out about it, the numbers have increased." Stating that around 250 people participated in the drive in May this year. "After the drive closes, the clothes get separated into two piles, clothes which are in good condition and can be reworn are donated to people in need and clothes which cannot be reworn due to its poor condition and are sent to Sahaas Zero Waste."

"Now when I buy clothes, I pay more attention to its quality and how long I can wear it," Dharnojwala reflected on her buying habits changing and encouraged others to practice a similar mindset, "we should purchase mindfully and choose durable clothing." Reflecting on her first visit to Sahaas Zero Waste factory, "I didn't get to see much but while observing the workers, I noticed how time consuming the process must be, from sorting through large amounts of clothes, separating multi-fiber blends, and even fa cing dangers of getting contamination from dyes and finishes"

Dharnojwala suggested that when brands design clothes, they should reduce blended fiber ratios, improve fiber labeling, and be in coordination with textile recycling factories from the very beginning. With high collection rates, better fiber traceability, accountability from brands, and policy enforcement for reduction of textile waste from design to disposal, textile recycling will stand a stronger chance towards saving our planet.

Dowry and the Cost of Human Lives

OISHANI MUKHERJEE

In India, the practice of dowry was banned on May 1, 1961, with the enactment of the Dowry Prohibition Act. More than six decades later, however, the question remains: has dowry truly disappeared, or has it simply taken on different forms under the names of gifts, shagun, or contributions made for a daughter's well-being?

According to the latest available National Crime Records Bureau (NCRB) data, India recorded 5,737 dowry deaths in 2024 and 6,156 in 2023, averaging nearly 17 deaths every day. Despite legal prohibitions and growing awareness, dowry-related violence continues to affect thousands of women across the country.

The recent death of Twisha Sharma on May 12, 2026, just five months after her marriage, brought renewed attention to the issue. Twisha's family has alleged that she was subjected to harassment over dowry demands by her husband and mother-in-law. The accused have denied the allegations, and the case remains under investigation.

Independent women's rights activist Shashwati Sahoo said the persistence of dowry reflects deeper social and institutional failures. "Despite being illegal, the dowry system persists due to weak enforcement of laws, inadequate protection for women, and a lack of education and awareness," she said.

According to Sahoo, many dowry-related cases follow a similar pattern, where warning signs are ignored until it is too late. "The common pattern in such cases is the failure to protect women despite warning signs, with families often choosing to adjust, negotiate, or remain silent rather than report abuse due to social pressure," she said.

Another concern is the way some suspicious deaths are initially treated. Sahoo believes that misreporting dowry-related deaths as suicides or accidents can severely affect investigations and accountability. "It is deeply disturbing, as misreporting a dowry-related death as a suicide or accident can significantly alter the course of an investigation, especially when evidence is limited or not immediately apparent. It also undermines public confidence in the system's ability to protect women and hold perpetrators accountable," she said.

The justice system also faces challenges. With more than 83,000 dowry-related cases pending in courts, many families are forced to endure long legal battles while seeking justice. "Prolonged delays in justice can weaken public faith in the judicial system and discourage victims and their families from coming forward," Sahoo said.

When asked what steps are needed to address the issue, she emphasized stronger implementation of existing laws, faster investigations, stricter accountability for offenders, and greater public awareness.

Despite being outlawed for several decades, dowry continues to persist. While its form may have evolved over time, the underlying mindset remains unchanged. Material gain is still too often valued above the lives, dignity, and well-being of women.

Members of the Karnataka Rajya Raitha Sangha and Hasiaru Sene gathered at the Gollaleshwar Agro Agency and expressed strong anger over the alleged incident. Protesters claimed that farmer Dattu Pujari was insulted when he visited the agency to buy agricultural inputs, leading to widespread resentment among the farming community.

The situation briefly turned tense when farmers and agency representatives engaged in a heated exchange at the site. As emotions escalated, there was concern that the protest could turn more volatile.

They intervened between the two sides and ensured that law and order was maintained in the area.Authorities later assured the protesting farmers that their complaints would be investigated and appropriate action would be taken based on findings. The project is being executed using savings from the 15th Finance Commission scheme, aimed at strengthening basic civic infrastructure across the city. Drainage failure triggers flooding in Mangaluru

MANGALURU

A video circulating on social media has highlighted severe civic infrastructure issues in the Konchadi locality of Mangaluru, where a scooter rider was seen struggling to navigate through heavily waterlogged streets due to drainage failure.

The footage, shared by social media user Sukesh J. Bhandary, shows inundated roads leading toward Nagakannika Temple, exposing the impact of a collapsed underground drainage system in the area. The visuals have sparked concern among residents about the recurring flooding problem during rainfall.

In his post, Bhandary urged the Mangaluru City Corporation and the City Police Commissioner to take immediate action to resolve the issue. He pointed out that the failure of the drainage line has left the locality highly vulnerable to flooding whenever it rains, raising questions about the maintenance of essential civic infrastructure. Residents of the area have expressed frustration over the repeated waterlogging, stating that the problem has persisted despite earlier complaints. They allege that inadequate maintenance of stormwater drains has worsened the situation, especially during the monsoon season.

With the southwest monsoon becoming active across coastal Karnataka in June, such incidents of flooding and water stagnation are increasingly being reported. Locals fear that continued neglect could lead to more severe disruptions in the coming weeks if corrective measures are not taken promptly. Citizens have called for urgent intervention to repair and up grade the drainage system to ensure safe and smooth movement for commuters. They stressed that proper urban planning and regular maintenance are essential to prevent recurrin g monsoon-related hardships.

India Reaffirms Bilateral Process for Deporting Illegal Bangladeshis

MEA confirms 13 foreign nationals killed in Malviya Nagar fire incident

NEW DELHI

India on Friday reiterated that it follows a structured bilateral mechanism for the deportation of illegal Bangladeshi nationals and expressed hope that Bangladesh would speed up the verification of pending nationality requests.

Speaking during the weekly media briefing, Ministry of External Affairs spokesperson Randhir Jaiswal said India has clear legal procedures to deal with foreign nationals staying in the country illegally, including citizens of Bangladesh.

Jaiswal stated that all foreign nationals found living illegally in India are dealt with according to the law. He said deportation can only take place after Bangladesh confirms the nationality of the individuals concerned through an existing bilateral arrangement between the two countries.

According to him, India first refers such cases to Bangladeshi authorities for verification. Once nationality is confirmed, the deportation process is carried forward. He also noted that several requests sent by India are still awaiting a response from Bangladesh.

The spokesperson said India hopes these pending cases will be processed quickly so that deportations can be completed smoothly and efficiently.

His remarks came amid fresh allegations by Border Guard Bangladesh (BGB), which claimed it had prevented 10 separate attempts by India's Border Security Force (BSF) to push people into Bangladesh across different border locations over a 24-hour period.

The BGB claimed standoffs occurred in Jhenaidah, Jessore and Panchagarh, alleging a BSF attempt to move 30–35 people into Bangladesh was stopped. It said border surveillance and patrols have been intensified and vowed to prevent illegal entries. India maintains that migration and deportation issues are addressed through legal bilateral mechanisms.

The Ministry of External Affairs said 13 foreign nationals were among the 21 people killed in the Malviya Nagar fire in Delhi. MEA spokesperson Randhir Jaiswal said India is coordinating with the victims' embassies to provide assistance and complete formalities. Around 20 to 22 foreign nationals were injured. Meanwhile, hotel co-owner Lavkesh Bajaj has been arrested and remanded to four days of police custody as investigations into the deadly blaze continue.

The initiative was launched on World Environment Day 2026 along with several environmental programmes under the nationwide "Ek Ped Maa Ke Naam" campaign.

The inauguration was held jointly with Union Environment Minister Bhupender Yadav at the Namo Oxygen Park in Maidangarhi. According to officials, the parks have been developed as green spaces that will help improve air quality, increase biodiversity and provide recreational areas for residents.

Addressing the gathering, Gupta urged citizens to actively participate in the plantation drive. She appealed to people to plant and care for saplings and suggested forming local committees to ensure that the plants grow into healthy trees. She called upon residents to support the government's efforts to create a cleaner and greener Delhi.

Supreme Court advised petitioner to approach Allahabad High Court over vacancies in Uttar Pradesh Human Rights Commission

SC Declines Plea on UP Rights Panel Vacancies

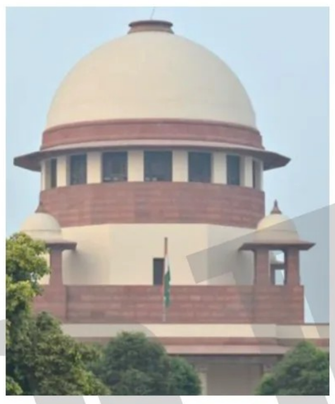
NEW DELHI

The Supreme Court on Friday declined to hear a public interest litigation seeking directions to fill vacant posts in the Uttar Pradesh Human Rights Commission and to create a standard procedure for timely appointments in human rights bodies across the country.

A bench comprising Justices Vikram Nath and V. Mahadevan questioned whether the matter could be directly raised before the apex court under Article 32 of the Constitution. The bench suggested that the petitioner should approach the Allahabad High Court, noting that High Courts have been monitoring such issues.

During the hearing, the petitioner's counsel argued that the Uttar Pradesh Human Rights Commission had been functioning without a chairperson for nearly two years and currently had only two members. The counsel also pointed out that a related matter concerning vacancies in the National Human Rights Commission was already pending before the Supreme Court.

However, the bench was not inclined to examine the issue. When the petitioner attempted to present details of vacancies in various state human rights commissions, the court indicated that it would not entertain the petition.



Following the court's observations, the petitioner withdrew the plea and sought permission to move the Allahabad High Court. The Supreme Court then dismissed the matter as withdrawn while granting liberty to pursue remedies before the High Court.

The petition sought prompt appointments to vacant posts in the Uttar Pradesh Human Rights Commission and a uniform system for timely appointments nationwide. Filed through advocate Aviral Saxena, it argued that long-standing vacancies had hampered the commission's work and pointed to similar staffing shortages in several other state human rights commissions.

The landmark programme concluded at the National Institute of Mountaineering and Adventure Sports (NIMAS) Centre in Guwahati. Officials said the achievement marks a significant step in expanding adventure and skill-based training opportunities for NCC cadets across the country.

NEPAL FOREIGN MINISTER BEGINS KEY INDIA VISIT

Nepal's foreign minister will hold high-level talks in New Delhi to strengthen cooperation in several sectors

NEW DELHI

Nepal's Foreign Minister Shisir Khanal arrived in India on a three-day official visit from June 5 to 7 at the invitation of External Affairs Minister S. Jaishankar. The visit is expected to further strengthen the long-standing relationship between the two neighbouring countries.

According to the Ministry of External Affairs, Khanal is scheduled to hold formal talks with Jaishankar in New Delhi on Saturday evening. The discussions will focus on reviewing bilateral ties and exploring ways to increase cooperation in important areas.

Officials said both sides will discuss matters of mutual interest, including trade, investment, energy security, digital and physical connectivity, and people-to-people relations. The talks are also expected to examine new opportunities for partnership and development between the two countries.

The visit is the highest-level engagement from the government of Prime Minister Balendra Shah since it assumed office in March this year. Nepal's Foreign Ministry said the visit follows a formal invitation from Jaishankar and forms part of the regular exchange of high-level visits between the two nations.

The ministry stated that the discussions aim to deepen cooperation across key sectors while strengthening the enduring and multifaceted relationship shared by India and Nepal. Both countries enjoy close cultural, historical and economic ties.

The visit comes at a time when relations between the two neighbours continue to expand across several areas. It also coincides with the recent visit of Rabi Lamichhane, who met Prime Minister Narendra Modi in New Delhi earlier this week.

India remains one of Nepal's key development partners, supporting projects in infrastructure, health, education, power, agriculture, cultural preservation and capacity building over the past seven decades.

13 foreign nationals among Delhi hotel fire victims; embassy outreach underway

NEW DELHI

The Ministry of External Affairs (MEA) on Friday confirmed that 13 foreign nationals were among the 21 people killed in the devastating fire at a hotel in Delhi's Malviya Nagar area earlier this week. The government said it is coordinating closely with the affected countries and providing necessary assistance to victims and their families.

Addressing a weekly media briefing, MEA spokesperson Randhir Jaiswal said the deceased foreign nationals included four citizens of Nigeria, three from Kyrgyzstan and one each from Mozambique, Uzbekistan, Bangladesh, Democratic Republic of the Congo, Liberia and Iraq.

Jaiswal said around 20 to 22 foreign nationals were also injured in the blaze. The MEA is in contact with all concerned embassies and is facilitating paperwork, consular support and medical assistance.

The fire broke out on Wednesday at the Flourish Stay B&B in Malviya Nagar. Officials said the flames spread rapidly through the five-storey building, which reportedly lacked a fire No Objection Certificate (NOC) and had only one entry and exit point.

Police sources said several foreign guests were staying at the hotel for medical treatment. Among them were couples undergoing IVF procedures at a nearby hospital. In one case, a woman died while her husband survived and is receiving treatment. Another woman sustained severe injuries and was reportedly paralysed from the waist down, while her husband also remains under medical care.

Investigations into the cause of the fire and possible safety violations are continuing.

India and the United Kingdom are expanding climate cooperation to promote clean energy and sustainable growth

India UK Deepen Partnership for Net Zero Goals

NEW DELHI

On World Environment Day, India and the United Kingdom reaffirmed their commitment to tackling climate change through the India-UK Vision 2035 partnership, aimed at accelerating the transition towards a cleaner and more sustainable future.

The partnership focuses on expanding clean energy, increasing climate finance and encouraging innovation to help both countries achieve long-term net-zero goals. Officials from both nations said stronger cooperation is essential to address global environmental challenges and create lasting economic opportunities.

The collaboration received fresh momentum during high-level discussions in New Delhi between Union Minister Manohar Lal Khattar and UK Energy Security and Net Zero Secretary Ed Miliband. The leaders reviewed efforts to strengthen cooperation in renewable energy, technology development and sustainable infrastructure.

Under the partnership, both countries aim to increase investments in renewable energy projects, support technology transfers and encourage research in advanced green technologies. Areas of focus include battery storage, hydrogen energy and sustainable manufacturing. The initiative also seeks to unlock climate finance for developing economies to support environmentally responsible growth.

The British High Commission in India highlighted the importance of immediate action to protect the planet and said the Vision 2035 framework is helping convert climate goals into practical outcomes. The UK Foreign, Commonwealth and Development Office described India as a major global power and said the partnership is laying the foundation for shared prosperity.

The climate agenda was also discussed during the recent India visit of UK Foreign Secretary Yvette Cooper.

Andhra Begins Massive Seed Ball Campaign

AMARAVATI

On the occasion of World Environment Day, the Andhra Pradesh government launched an ambitious programme to prepare and distribute 2.5 crore seed balls to increase green cover and promote biodiversity across the state.

Deputy Chief Minister and Forests and Environment Minister Pawan Kalyan inaugurated the initiative at the Butterfly Park in NTR district on Friday. The programme is part of the state's long-term vision to increase forest and green cover to 50 per cent by 2047.

Pawan Kalyan personally participated in making seed balls along with public representatives, government officials, women from self-help groups, students and members of voluntary organisations. He also watched demonstrations of seed ball dispersal using drones and reviewed activities taking place across the state through a video conference.

The seed balls are being prepared using seeds of native tree species, including tamarind, neem, mango, soapnut, banyan, Indian gooseberry, teak, mahua, arjuna and white karonda. Officials said the preparation process has been launched at nearly 300 locations across Andhra Pradesh.

During his interaction with participants, the Deputy Chief Minister asked about the types of seeds being used and the number of seed balls being produced. He encouraged people to actively support the programme and praised children who explained the environmental benefits of seed balls.

Pawan Kalyan directed officials to complete the preparation of all 2.5 crore seed balls by June 15. Later, he inspected the process of releasing seed balls on hilltops with the help of drones.

In his World Environment Day message, he stressed the importance of protecting nature, reducing pollution and preserving biodiversity for future generations. He urged citizens to adopt sustainable practices and contribute towards building a cleaner, greener and healthier India.

He also instructed officials to establish yoga halls in every eco-tourism park after inspecting facilities at the Butterfly Park.

THREE ARRESTED FOR SELLING MINORS INTO MARRIAGES

LUCKNOW

Lucknow Police have busted an inter-state gang allegedly involved in luring minor girls and selling them for marriage in Rajasthan. Three accused and a juvenile have been taken into custody in connection with the case.

According to police, the gang targeted vulnerable girls, especially those from poor families or without parental support. The accused allegedly befriended the girls, offered them outings and new clothes, and later planned to send them to Rajasthan in exchange for money.

The case came to light after two minor girls, aged 16 and 12, went missing from Ganihar village on May 12. Their grandmother filed a complaint, stating that a juvenile relative and a woman had taken them away on the pretext of meeting their mother.

Deputy Commissioner of Police Amit Kumar Anand said police formed four teams to investigate the case. Officers reviewed nearly 150 CCTV recordings and carried out technical and field surveillance. The girls were safely rescued on May 18.

During the investigation, police found that the girls had been taken to Rajasthan's Kota district with the intention of arranging marriages in return for payment. The arrested accused have been identified as Anurag Yadav, Mohammad Akhtar and Priya Patel, also known as Sheila.

Police said Priya allegedly worked with associates in Rajasthan and received between Rs 1 lakh and Rs 1.5 lakh for each arranged marriage. The gang reportedly sent photographs of girls to contacts in Kota before negotiating payments.

Two vehicles used in the crime have been seized. Police are continuing investigations to identify and arrest other people involved, including Rajasthan-based associates.

Rai meets President Zhaparov at SCO summit

Indian MoS Nityanand Rai met Kyrgyzstan President Sadyr Zhaparov in Bishkek to discuss regional security and cooperation

BISHKEK

India's Minister of State for Home Affairs, Nityanand Rai, called on Kyrgyzstan President Sadyr Zhaparov in the capital city of Bishkek. The high-profile courtesy meeting took place on the sidelines of an important regional security conference.

Minister Rai is currently visiting Kyrgyzstan to attend a three-day summit of the Shanghai Cooperation Organisation, which runs until June 6. He joined several other international heads of delegations to meet with President Zhaparov. The top leaders discussed vital issues regarding public security, law enforcement, and regional stability.

Upon his arrival at the local airport, Rai received a warm welcome from Kyrgyzstan's Internal Affairs Minister, Colonel General Ulan Niyazbekov, alongside Indian Ambassador Birender Singh Yadav. Kyrgyzstan currently holds the leadership chair for the global organization, focusing its current presidency on building sustainable peace, growth, and prosperity across all member nations.

The influential alliance has grown significantly over the years. Founded in 2001 by six nations, it expanded to include India and Pakistan in 2017, followed by Iran and Belarus. It now features ten powerful member states alongside various observer nations and dialogue partners.

India has actively participated in several high-level security and defense meetings in Bishkek over the past few months. This latest diplomatic visit by Minister Rai strongly highlights India's ongoing commitment to fighting transnational crime and strengthening its strategic partnerships with Central Asian nations to ensure a safer future.

Japan discusses destroyer exports with Indonesia

TOKYO

Japan and Indonesia have agreed to launch official working-level talks regarding the potential export of advanced Japanese naval destroyers to the Southeast Asian nation. The decision highlights Tokyo's rapid push to strengthen military partnerships with friendly countries across the Indo-Pacific region.

The strategic agreement was reached during a high-profile meeting in Tokyo between Japanese Defense Minister Shinjiro Koizumi and his Indonesian counterpart, Sjafrie Sjamsoeddin. According to defense officials, Indonesia has expressed a strong desire to acquire Japan's reliable Asagiri-class destroyers. This move would significantly boost Jakarta's maritime security and technological capabilities.

This discussion comes after Japan eased its strict restrictions on exporting lethal military equipment in April. Since then, Tokyo has actively sought deeper security ties with key regional partners,

Japan and Indonesia have launched working-level talks to negotiate the potential export of Japanese Asagiri-class naval destroyers, strengthening regional defense ties including New Zealand and the Philippines. Minister Koizumi recently promoted Japanese naval technology to Australia and New Zealand, emphasizing how shared military equipment can improve joint operations during a crisis.

Furthermore, Japan and Australia have already signed major contracts to jointly build warships based on Japan's modern frigate designs. Experts believe Tokyo is quickly transforming into a crucial security anchor for Southeast Asia to maintain balance in highly contested waters.

The two defense ministers decided to route all future technical negotiations through a special working group established last month. Both nations are highly optimistic about the future. They believe this historic warship deal will not only modernize Indonesia's fleet but also foster long-term peace, safety, and cooperation across the entire region.

A mysterious maritime drone self-detonated inside Romania's busy port of Constanta, causing an explosion but no injuries

Sea drone explodes in Romanian Black Port

BUCHAREST

A mysterious maritime drone self-detonated inside Romania's busy port of Constanta. Fortunately, nobody was hurt during the unexpected blast. Local security forces quickly rushed to the scene to secure the area and investigate the frightening situation.

The Romanian Ministry of National Defence immediately clarified that the explosive device did not belong to the national military. Furthermore, officials confirmed it was not involved in any recent naval training exercises conducted in the surrounding Black Sea.

Security forces and local police acted swiftly, evacuating everyone safely from the area before the actual detonation took place. Romanian President Nicusor Dan assured the public that protecting human lives and safeguarding port infrastructure remain the government's topmost priorities. Because Romania is a dedicated NATO member bordering the strategic Black Sea, President Dan promised to work closely with international allies to handle any potential dangers.

This explosion marks the second major coastal security scare this week, following the discovery of a dangerous underwater mine just days ago. European Union chief Ursula von der Leyen strongly condemned the event, calling it a direct consequence of the war in neighboring Ukraine. She warned that such stray devices are becoming a real threat to nations on the eastern border. Security experts are currently analyzing how the drone managed to enter the secure port to prevent similar terrifying incidents from happening again.

Four lethal factors drive Bangladesh safety crisis

DHAKA

Bangladesh is experiencing a deeply disturbing collapse in public safety as violent crimes continue to surge across the nation. Experts warn that widespread drug abuse and a sharp decline in moral values are triggering a terrifying wave of domestic violence, child abuse, and sexual harassment.

According to a new report, social analysts and psychologists have identified four dangerous factors driving this crisis. Widespread narcotics, weakening social oversight, fading morals, and a persistent culture of impunity are rapidly destroying the community's safety. Cheap illicit drugs, ranging from marijuana to highly lethal crystal meth, have spread aggressively from major urban centers to remote rural villages, engulfing the country's youth.

This rampant addiction severely damages self-control, leading directly to violent behavior where women and children become easy targets. Local crime data indicates that the vast majority of recent muggings and sexual assaults are heavily linked to substance abuse. Unfortunately, powerful and highly organized criminal syndicates keep the lucrative drug trade alive despite frequent police crackdowns.

Even more shocking, horrific incidents of abuse are now emerging from traditionally safe spaces like residential schools and religious institutions. Shocked citizens are calling on the government to dismantle these elite criminal networks immediately. Experts stress that to restore peace, families, schools, and religious leaders must unite as a single protective shield. Society must stop protecting influential criminals and take decisive, urgent action before time completely runs out.

India and France strengthen defence cooperation

PARIS

Indian Air Force Chief AP Singh concluded a three-day official visit to France, reinforcing defense ties between the two nations. Singh held bilateral talks with French military leaders, visited key combat centers, and engaged with top defense manufacturers like Dassault Aviation to advance the "Make in India" initiative.

The high-profile visit follows India issuing an official request to buy 114 Rafale fighter jets in a massive deal. Under the proposal, 94 of these advanced jets will be manufactured domestically in India, significantly boosting the country's aerial capabilities and maritime security.

EU condemned for Pakistan special trade benefits

WASHINGTON

The European Union is facing intense global criticism for continuing to grant special trade benefits to Pakistan despite the country's worsening human rights record. International observers warn that the current agreement is enabling severe abuses against religious minorities.

Under a special system launched in 2014, known as the GSP-plus status, the European Union rewards Pakistan with tax-free access to European markets for over sixty-six percent of its products. This generous economic lifeline aims to encourage good governance. However, rights groups state that Pakistan has completely failed to show meaningful progress. The Brussels-based organization 'Human Rights without Frontiers' strongly condemned the agreement, labeling it a bad deal that must be suspended immediately.

The impact is devastating for Pakistan's small Christian community, which makes up less than two percent of the population. Journalists and activists report that these minorities face constant societal persecution, including mob violence, harsh blasphemy laws, and economic exclusion. Furthermore, young minority girls are deeply vulnerable to kidnappings and forced marriages. A recent tragic case involved a fourteen-year-old girl who was abducted and forced to convert in Lahore last month.

Despite these clear violations of international labor and human rights pledges, Pakistan's government continues to enjoy the lucrative trade scheme. Critics argue that the European Union is ignoring its own strict standards by maintaining the partnership. Activists are now demanding an urgent review of the trade policy, insisting that economic rewards must be tied to the genuine protection of human lives.

Japan's PM moves to deepen India ties

TOKYO

In a major diplomatic move, Japanese Prime Minister Sanae Takaichi is making arrangements to visit India as early as next month. The upcoming high-profile visit aims to significantly deepen the economic and security ties between the two powerful Asian nations.

According to reports, plans are currently being finalized for Takaichi to travel to the northeastern state of Assam. There, she will hold an important in-person summit with Indian Prime Minister Narendra Modi. The two leaders are expected to discuss a wide range of bilateral issues, focusing heavily on stabilizing global energy supplies and securing critical mineral supply chains amid ongoing tensions in West Asia.

This trip will mark their second official face-to-face meeting, following productive discussions held on the sidelines of the G20 Summit in Johannesburg last November. Both leaders want to build upon the ambitious ten-year joint partnership vision that was originally outlined during Prime Minister Modi's state visit to Japan in 2025.

Takaichi aims to establish a consistent tradition of regular, mutual visits between the heads of both governments to ensure long-term stability. PM Modi previously congratulated Takaichi on her landmark election victory in February, expressing immense confidence in her leadership. In response, Takaichi reiterated her strong commitment to maintaining a free and open Indo-Pacific region. International security experts are watching the developing situation closely, believing that a robust India-Japan alliance remains absolutely vital for maintaining global peace and economic prosperity.

US lawmakers propose Chinese robot ban

WASHINGTON DC

Bipartisan US lawmakers have introduced the GUARD Act to review and potentially ban humanoid and four-legged robots made by China and other foreign adversaries. Sponsors argue these high-tech machines pose significant national security risks, warning they could contain hidden vulnerabilities used for cyber espionage. The bill requires security agencies to inspect incoming technology. Dangerous products will face an immediate market ban. Lawmakers also accuse Chinese robotics firms of using government subsidies to flood the US with artificially cheap products, undercutting local manufacturers and deepening a risky reliance on foreign military-linked technology.

Turkiye to host ITTF World Youth Championships

The 2026 World Youth Championships has moved to Istanbul from Bahrain due to safety concerns over regional conflict

LAUSANNE

The International Table Tennis Federation (ITTF) announced that the World Youth Championships 2026 has been officially relocated to Istanbul, Turkiye, following the unexpected withdrawal of the original host nation, Bahrain. The tournament dates will remain completely unchanged, running from November 21 to 28.

The Bahrain Table Tennis Association made the difficult decision to step down after intense, close consultations with global governing bodies. Both entities mutually prioritized the safety and overall well-being of all international athletes, officials, and incoming delegations given the ongoing war in West Asia. Expressing her profound gratitude, ITTF President Petra Sörling commended Bahrain for putting the welfare of the sports community first, while expressing absolute confidence in Turkiye's ability to pull off a spectacular showpiece event.

This marquee tournament brings together the most elite global junior table tennis talent across both the Under-19 and Under-15 categories. Crucially, it marks the first time in history that Turkiye will host an official ITTF world title event.

The matches are scheduled to take place at Istanbul's prominent Ata Sporları Merkezi, a sophisticated facility highly experienced in hosting major World Table Tennis (WTT) events. Beyond crowning the next generation of global champions, the tournament will serve as a vital operational dress rehearsal for Turkish sports organizers ahead of the 2027 European Games. Kerim Koç, president of the Turkiye Table Tennis Federation, celebrated the historic assignment, stating that welcoming the world's best young players will act as a major catalyst to inspire the country's next generation of athletes.

Embolo granted US visa ahead of WC

Swiss striker Breel Embolo has received US visa approval for the 2026 World Cup, resolving background check delays to rejoin his team in California.

BERN

Switzerland striker Breel Embolo has finally received approval to enter the United States for the upcoming 2026 FIFA World Cup, following a stressful visa delay caused by intensive legal and background checks by American authorities.

The 29-year-old Rennes forward had been forced to miss the Swiss national squad's initial departure to their pre-tournament training camp in San Diego, California, earlier this week. The Electronic System for Travel Authorization (ESTA) was placed under strict review, forcing Embolo to remain behind in Switzerland. He was required to attend a mandatory appointment at the US Embassy, where officials reviewed documentation concerning a 2018 altercation in Basel and a 2023 conviction for making threats the latter resulting in a suspended fine that became legally binding earlier this year.

The Swiss Football Federation confirmed that the diplomatic hurdle has been fully resolved, and Embolo is scheduled to land in California to link up with his teammates by Friday evening.

The physical centre-forward's arrival provides a massive boost to manager Murat Yakin's attacking arsenal.

Boasting 86 international caps and 24 goals, Embolo's tournament experience is vital for Rossocrociati.

Placed in Group B, Switzerland will launch their World Cup campaign against Qatar on June 13 at the San Francisco Bay Area Stadium in Santa Clara, California, before facing Bosnia & Herzegovina and co-hosts Canada.

GROUP B MATTERS: SWITZERLAND'S WORLD CUP FIXTURES

Date (2026)	Opponent	Venue
June 13	Qatar	San Francisco Bay Area Stadium (Santa Clara, CA)
June 17	Bosnia and Herzegovina	Los Angeles Stadium (Los Angeles, CA)
June 24	Canada	BC Place (Vancouver, BC)

Test cricket must change to survive: Ashwin

NEW DELHI

Former Indian cricket star Ravichandran Ashwin has sent out a serious warning about the future of Test cricket. The legendary spin bowler stated that the traditional five-day format urgently needs to change if it wants to survive.

Ashwin was recently celebrated as one of the twenty-five greatest international players of this century. During the ceremony, he explained that the game has reached a critical turning point. He worries that many talented athletes who spend fifteen years playing domestic cricket are missing out on national selection. Without proper financial rewards and clear opportunities, young players might lose their passion for the longest form of the game.

The great all-rounder also noted that modern cricket moves incredibly fast. Because of the massive financial success of high-scoring T20 matches, bowlers are facing intense pressure. Ashwin believes that bowlers can no longer rely purely on taking individual wickets. Instead, they must work together like a pack of hunting wolves and learn to solve tricky problems ball by ball.

Ashwin officially retired from international cricket in late 2024 with a staggering 765 wickets. He remains one of India's most successful match-winners, second only to the iconic Anil Kumble. As a devoted fan of the traditional game, Ashwin hopes his words will inspire quick action from cricket authorities. He insists that immediate updates are absolutely vital to keep the historic format exciting and relevant for the next generation.

This year, the tournament has grown tremendously, expanding from forty-two teams last year to an impressive sixty teams.

More than 700 excited players will showcase their talent across multiple grounds in the capital.

"We started this tournament to give young girls more chances to play competitive cricket," Jaitley said joyfully. He added that the main goal is to build a solid pathway from local club matches to the highest levels of international cricket.

Other top officials, including vice president Shikha Kumar and secretary Ashok Sharma, praised local clubs for being the true backbone of this sports revolution.

They noted that the incredible jump in player registration proves women's cricket is booming in popularity.

The highly anticipated matches will take place over the coming weeks at several prominent venues, including Shivaji College and Pitampura.

Pathirage wins Rome Diamond League Javelin title

ROME

Sri Lankan athlete Rumesh Pathirage shocked the world last night by winning the men's javelin throw title at the Rome Diamond League. The young star delivered an unbelievable throw to secure a historic victory on the global track and field stage.

The twenty-three-year-old launched a breathtaking throw of 92.62 meters at the iconic Stadio Olimpico. This spectacular distance smashed the tournament's twenty-year-old record by more than two meters. Pathirage's massive effort also came incredibly close to the Asian record set by Olympic champion Arshad Nadeem in 2024. With this performance, he becomes only the fourth Asian athlete in history to break the legendary ninety-meter barrier, joining greats like India's Neeraj Chopra.

Former world champion Anderson Peters finished a distant second place, while America's Curtis Thompson grabbed third. Pathirage now proudly holds the two best javelin throws in the world this year.

His victory has sparked massive celebrations across Sri Lanka, highlighting his rapid rise as a global track superstar.

Meanwhile, India's Sachin Yadav experienced a quiet Diamond League debut. Competing in his very first international event since placing fourth at last year's World Championships, the twenty-six-year-old struggled to find his best form. He finished in eighth place out of ten elite competitors with a top throw of 79.18 meters.

Despite the mixed results for the neighboring nations, Asian athletes completely dominated the headlines on a thrilling night of athletics.

Las Vegas secures long term F1 deal

MONACO

The thunderous roar of engines will echo down the famous Las Vegas Strip for another decade. Formula One officials announced that the city has signed a massive ten-year contract extension, guaranteeing the thrilling night race remains on the global calendar until 2037. Since its spectacular debut in 2023, the floodlit Saturday night race has quickly become a fan favorite. Drivers fly past iconic casinos at breathtaking speeds of over 200 miles per hour. Las Vegas is one of three American cities currently hosting a Grand Prix, alongside Austin and Miami, proving that the sport's popularity is booming across the United States.

The decision to extend the contract makes perfect business sense. Tourism and racing officials revealed that the event has pumped a staggering $3.2 billion into the local economy since its inception. Every single race has sold out completely, drawing around 300,000 passionate fans over each three-day weekend. Furthermore, the event generated $43 million in tax revenue last year while donating millions to local charities.

Formula One chief Stefano Domenicali expressed great excitement about the extended partnership, calling the city a true cornerstone of American motorsport.

Local leaders agree that keeping the race is a defining moment for Las Vegas as it evolves into the ultimate sports destination. With the future locked in, fans can look forward to many more years of high-speed drama and world-class entertainment under the neon lights.

Serena Williams announces return to professional tennis

LONDON

In a stunning twist that has thrilled sports fans worldwide, legendary tennis icon Serena Williams is officially returning to the professional courts.

The twenty-three-time Grand Slam champion announced that she will play doubles at the upcoming HSBC Championships at Queen's Club.

The forty-four-year-old American superstar is teaming up with a rising nineteen-year-old Canadian sensation, Victoria Mboko.

Despite a fascinating twenty-five-year age gap between the two partners, the dynamic duo is eager to take on the historic grass courts of West Kensington from June 8 to 14.

Williams received a special wild-card entry to join the competitive women's tournament.

An incredibly excited Mboko shared her joy on social media, writing that it is an absolute honor to share the court with one of the greatest athletes of all time.

Williams has not played a competitive match since the 2022 US Open, where she famously stated she was "evolving away" from the sport rather than fully retiring.

During her spectacular career, Williams last won a major singles trophy at the 2017 Australian Open while pregnant.

Though she reached four additional Grand Slam finals after her maternity leave, she narrowly missed matching the all-time record.

Tennis enthusiasts are buzzing with immense excitement over this unexpected comeback.

Seeing the legendary champion bring her iconic power back to the grass courts alongside a bright teenage star promises to make the London tournament an unforgettable event for sports history.

India boosts Venezuelan oil imports

They discussed expanding energy cooperation as rising crude supply uncertainties push New Delhi toward diversified imports

NEW DELHI

India and Venezuela have agreed to deepen cooperation in the energy sector as New Delhi seeks to diversify crude oil supplies amid ongoing geopolitical uncertainties and disruptions affecting traditional import routes. The discussions took place during a meeting between Union Petroleum and Natural Gas Minister Hardeep Singh Puri and Venezuela's Acting President Delcy Eloína Rodríguez Gómez in New Delhi.

During the meeting, Puri reaffirmed India's support for Venezuela's energy sector and stated that Indian companies are prepared to expand their presence in the South American nation. He emphasized Venezuela's growing importance in India's energy diversification strategy and expressed interest in strengthening bilateral energy trade.

Rodríguez welcomed greater participation by Indian firms in Venezuela's reformed oil and gas industry and described India as a reliable and preferred partner. She also invited an Indian delegation to visit Venezuela to explore fresh investment and collaboration opportunities in the energy sector.

The renewed engagement comes as India looks for alternative sources of crude oil following disruptions in global supply chains and concerns over shipments from the Gulf region. Venezuela, which possesses the world's largest proven oil reserves, has emerged as an increasingly significant supplier for India in recent months.

According to official data, India's average monthly crude oil imports from Venezuela rose sharply from 64.027 thousand metric tonnes during FY 2025-26 to 1,047.148 thousand metric tonnes during April-May of FY 2026-27. Venezuela was also among India's largest crude suppliers during the period.

Both sides highlighted the complementary nature of their energy sectors, with India's advanced refining capacity well-suited to process Venezuela's heavy crude oil. The discussions are expected to pave the way for stronger long-term cooperation in upstream and downstream energy projects, supporting India's efforts to enhance energy security and diversify its import basket.

SpaceX IPO access blocked in China and Hong Kong

HONG KONG

Access to SpaceX's official website and initial public offering (IPO) documents has reportedly been blocked for users in mainland China and Hong Kong, potentially limiting investor participation from two major financial markets in what is expected to be one of the world's largest public listings.

According to a Reuters review, users attempting to access SpaceX's website and IPO materials from these regions encountered an "Error 1009," which typically indicates a region-based restriction set by the website owner. The restriction comes as the company begins its IPO roadshow and releases key financial and business documents to potential investors.

The IPO, led by billionaire entrepreneur Elon Musk, aims to raise around $75 billion at a valuation of approximately $1.75 trillion. If successful, it would become the largest stock market debut in history and place SpaceX among the most valuable publicly listed companies globally.

Major investment banks, including Citigroup, Bank of America, Goldman Sachs, JPMorgan, and Morgan Stanley, are managing the offering, with additional support from Asian financial institutions for regional participation.

The reason for restricting access in China and Hong Kong has not been officially confirmed. Analysts suggest it could be linked to regulatory concerns, the company's defence-related operations, or broader restrictions on cross-border investor access to sensitive technology firms.

SpaceX has historically drawn strong global investor interest due to its dominance in reusable rocket technology, satellite communications, and space exploration initiatives. However, its links to U.S. defence contracts and advanced aerospace systems may also complicate access in certain jurisdictions.

Neither SpaceX nor the lead IPO banks have issued detailed comments on the restriction. The development raises questions about whether investors in key Asian markets will face barriers in participating in the highly anticipated offering.

As the IPO process continues, attention remains on pricing expected later this month and whether access issues will affect global demand for shares.

BHEL shares rise on winning major power project

NEW DELHI

Shares of state-owned Bharat Heavy Electricals Limited (BHEL) gained over 2 per cent on Friday after the engineering giant secured a major order worth more than Rs 21,000 crore for a thermal power project in Uttar Pradesh. The development boosted investor sentiment and reinforced confidence in the company's strong order pipeline.

BHEL was awarded the engineering, procurement and construction (EPC) contract by Meja Urja Nigam Pvt Ltd (MUNPL) for the 3x800 MW Meja Supercritical Thermal Power Project Stage-II in Prayagraj. The contract was awarded through an international competitive bidding process and includes design, engineering, manufacturing, supply, construction, erection, testing and commissioning of the project.

The company said the project is scheduled to be completed within 70 months from the date of award notification. MUNPL is a joint venture between NTPC Limited and Uttar Pradesh Rajya Vidyut Utpadan Nigam Limited. BHEL clarified that the transaction does not involve any related-party arrangements.

BHEL shares rose over 2 per cent after securing a Rs 21,000 crore thermal power project order, strengthening its order book and growth outlook.

The latest order comes shortly after the company secured another international contract valued between Rs 2,000 crore and Rs 2,500 crore from Nigeria's Dangote Petroleum Refinery & Petrochemicals Free Zone Enterprise. The agreement covers the design, manufacture, supply and supervision of erection and commissioning of eight gas turbine generator packages for a refinery and polypropylene plant in Nigeria.

Following the announcement, BHEL shares climbed 2.86 per cent to Rs 400.35 during intraday trading. The stock has delivered strong returns, rising 55.75 per cent over the past year and 36.55 per cent so far in 2026.

The company's financial performance has also remained robust. BHEL reported a 155.8 per cent jump in consolidated net profit to Rs 1,290.47 crore during the January-March quarter of FY26. Its provisional turnover for the full financial year stood at around Rs 32,350 crore, up 18 percent year-on-year.

BHEL secured total order inflows of approximately Rs 75,000 crore during FY26, taking its outstanding order book to around Rs 2.4 lakh crore.

The rupee strengthened sharply against the dollar after RBI announced measures to boost foreign investments and capital inflows

Rupee rallies as RBI eases foreign investment norms

NEW DELHI

The Indian rupee recorded a sharp gain against the US dollar on Friday after the Reserve Bank of India (RBI) announced a series of measures aimed at attracting foreign capital and improving investor confidence. The domestic currency appreciated by 50 paise during intraday trade, supported by positive market sentiment following the central bank's latest policy decisions.

The rupee strengthened to 95.24 against the US dollar after opening at 95.72 in the interbank foreign exchange market. In the previous trading session, the currency had settled at 95.74 against the dollar.

The appreciation came after the RBI unveiled steps to encourage foreign investments and strengthen capital inflows amid a challenging global economic environment.

Announcing the second bi-monthly monetary policy of FY27, RBI Governor Sanjay Malhotra said the Monetary Policy Committee (MPC) unanimously decided to keep the repo rate unchanged at 5.25 per cent.

Key Points
- Rupee gains 50 paise against dollar.
- RBI keeps repo rate unchanged.
- FPI investment norms eased significantly.
- FCNR deposit window supports inflows.
- Forex reserves boost market confidence.

The central bank also maintained its neutral policy stance, signalling a balanced approach toward growth and inflation management.

Among the key measures announced were higher investment limits for Non-Resident Indians (NRIs) and Overseas Citizens of India (OCIs) in equity instruments.

The RBI also relaxed norms governing Foreign Portfolio Investor (FPI) investments in government securities, a move expected to improve foreign participation in domestic financial markets.

Market experts said additional initiatives, including the expansion of the Fully Accessible Route (FAR) for government bonds, concessional foreign exchange swap facilities, and a temporary FCNR(B) deposit window, are likely to support dollar inflows and strengthen the rupee further.

The RBI reiterated that it does not target any specific exchange rate level and allows market forces to determine the value of the rupee. However, it remains committed to preventing excessive volatility and disorderly market movements.

Despite concerns over elevated crude oil prices, investor confidence received support from India's strong foreign exchange reserves, currently estimated at around $682 billion. The central bank also revised FY27 GDP growth projections to 6.6 per cent and raised inflation estimates to 5.1 per cent, reflecting evolving economic conditions.

RBI raises investment limits for NRIs and OCIs

MUMBAI

The Reserve Bank of India (RBI) on Friday announced a series of measures aimed at attracting foreign capital, strengthening external balances, and supporting economic growth. RBI Governor Sanjay Malhotra revealed the initiatives while presenting the outcome of the Monetary Policy Committee (MPC) meeting.

One of the key announcements was the increase in investment limits for Non-Resident Indians (NRIs) and Overseas Citizens of India (OCIs) in equity instruments traded on Indian stock exchanges without requiring re gistration with the Securities and Exchange Board of India (SEBI). The facility has also been extended to all individual Persons Resident Outside India (PROIs), placing them on par with NRIs and OCIs.

To further encourage foreign currency inflows, the RBI introduced a concessio nal foreign exchange swap facility for External Commercial Borrowings (ECBs) raised by Public Sector Undertakings (PSUs).

Rajesh exports shares hit lower circuit again amid probe

NEW DELHI

Shares of Rajesh Exports fell sharply for the second consecutive trading session on Friday, hitting the 5 per cent lower circuit limit after the Securities and Exchange Board of India (SEBI) barred the company's promoter and Chief Executive Officer, Rajesh Mehta, from dealing in the firm's securities.

The stock dropped 4.99 per cent to Rs 98.73 on the National Stock Exchange (NSE), while it declined 4.97 per cent to Rs 99.45 on the Bombay Stock Exchange (BSE). Investor sentiment remained weak following SEBI's interim order alleging serious financial irregularities within the company.

According to the market regulator, preliminary findings indicate large-scale misrepresentation of financial statements, diversion of funds, and inadequate disclosure of related-party transactions. SEBI stated that its investigation uncovered instances of fund routing and layering through personal accounts and related entities without sufficient documentation or proper disclosures.

The regulator said it had repeatedly sought accurate financial records and explanations regarding fund flows, end-use of funds, and business rationale. However, the responses received from the company were found to be unsatisfactory. SEBI also criticized the lack of cooperation from the company's statutory auditors, noting that promised audit working papers were not submitted despite multiple opportunities.

- Shares hit lower circuit again.
- SEBI bars promoter Rajesh Mehta.
- Alleged financial misreporting under investigation.
- Fund diversion and disclosure concerns.
- Company denies all allegations strongly.

In its order, SEBI observed that nearly 97 to 99 per cent of the company's reported revenue may have been inflated. The regulator described the alleged irregularities as highly unusual and serious in nature. It further stated that Rajesh Mehta exercised substantial control over the company's financial and operational affairs, leading to restrictions on his participation in the company's securities market activities until further notice.

Rajesh Exports has denied the allegations, maintaining that its financial reporting is accurate. The Bengaluru-based company said there may have been a communication gap with the regulator and expressed confidence that a review of authenticated documents would establish the correctness of its disclosures and business operations.

CONTINUOUS GAS FLARING

Oil India confirms natural gas discovery in Andaman

NEW DELHI

State-owned Oil India Limited has announced a fresh natural gas discovery in its third exploratory well in the Andaman offshore block, marking another encouraging sign of hydrocarbon presence in the region and boosting prospects for future energy exploration.

The company said the Vijayapuram-3 well, located under the Offshore Andaman Block AN-OSHP-2018/1, is situated about 15 km off the east coast of the Andaman Islands at a water depth of 355 metres. The drilling was carried out under the Open Acreage Licensing Policy (OALP), aimed at accelerating exploration activities in untapped offshore regions.

According to the company, the well was drilled to a depth of over 1,900 metres in the Eocene geological formation. Initial production testing confirmed the presence of natural gas, with continuous flaring observed after perforation, indicating active hydrocarbon flow. The well also showed im mediate pressure build-up followed by sustained gas produc tion, strengthening the discovery findings. Gas sampling is currently underway to determine the composition, calorific value, and overall quality of the reserves. The company is also conducting isotope studies to better understand the origin and migration pattern of hydrocarbons in the region.

This marks the second confir med hydrocarbon indication in the Andaman offshore block. Earlier, gas was discovered in the Vijayapuram-2 exploratory well in September 2025, sugge sting a broader potential energy system in the area.Out of the three wells drilled so far, two have confirmed hydrocarbon presence, indicating promising geological conditions. The com pany stated that the latest discovery serves as a "leading indicator" of possible source rock, migration pathways, or ac cumulation zones in the basin.The find is expected to help Oil India refine its exploration strategy and plan future drilling campaigns more effectively.

No. 3 slot remains India's biggest headache: DEVANG GANDHI

Former selector Devang Gandhi flagged India's unstable number three batting position as a major concern before the Afghanistan Test

NEW CHANDIGARH

Former national selector Devang Gandhi has flagged the number three batting position as India's biggest unresolved issue ahead of their one-off Test match against Afghanistan. He noted that the vital slot has remained a chaotic revolving door ever since veteran anchor Cheteshwar Pujara was dropped from the squad.

Since Pujara's exit, India has auditioned seven different batsmen at one-drop without anyone cementing the spot. Shubman Gill had the longest run before sliding down the order upon taking over the Test captaincy. Since then, the team has shuffled through Sai Sudharsan, Washington Sundar, Dhruv Jurel, and Devdutt Padikkal. Gandhi criticized this lack of consistency, pointing out how Sundar was abruptly pushed to number three on a spinning track against South Africa, only to be dropped immediately after a batting collapse.

With the upcoming Test hosted in Chandigarh, Gandhi urged selectors to pick a player and back them patiently. He suggested that Sudharsan might sit out this match after failing to capitalize on opportunities in England, opening the door for an in-form Padikkal. "Whoever they have identified, they need to give him a longer run of at least four or five Test matches. Number three requires immense technique and temperament," Gandhi stated.

The former selector also praised Gill's evolution as a calm leader and defended the surprise fast-tracking of tall pacer Gurnoor Brar over domestic top-wicket taker Auqib Nabi. Gandhi hinted that if Chandigarh presents a green pitch, Brar might debut to test his "X-factor" ahead of the New Zealand series.

Praggnanandhaa defeats Gukesh in Norway thriller

OSLO

Praggnanandhaa's vital victory over Gukesh threw the championship race wide open, while Assaubayeva captured the historic women's crown with a round to spare.

Indian Grandmaster R Praggnanandhaa breathed new life into his championship dreams after a stunning Round 9 victory over reigning World Champion D Gukesh, leaving the tournament wide open ahead of the final round.

Playing with the black pieces, Praggnanandhaa capitalized beautifully on a midgame error from Gukesh. He converted his advantage with supreme poise to claim his third consecutive classical win of the tournament. The maximum three-point reward propelled Praggnanandhaa to 15 points, putting him just half a point behind current leader Wesley So. Expressing his relief, Praggnanandhaa revealed he was thrilled to be in contention, considering he was battling for the bottom spot just three days ago.

Meanwhile, current leader Wesley So drew his classical matchup against World No. 1 Magnus Carlsen. However, the American rebounded instantly by winning the fast-paced Armageddon tiebreaker to secure the extra point and retain his lead. Trailing closely behind is Alireza Firouzja, who held off Vincent Keymer in their classical match before securing an Armageddon victory to sit comfortably at 14.5 points.

In the women's category, Kazakhstan's Bibisara Assaubayeva officially clinched the historic crown with a round to spare. Assaubayeva drew her classical game against Anna Muzychuk.

Though Muzychuk won the subsequent Armageddon tiebreaker, Assaubayeva's mathematical lead at 16.5 points became completely uncatchable. China's Zhu Jiner scored the only decisive classical win of the women's bracket by outlasting India's Divya Deshmukh in time trouble to climb into second place overall.

CHINA BEATS INDIA in hockey semifinal

KAKAMIGAHARA

The Indian under-18 women's hockey team suffered a heartbreaking 1-3 penalty shootout defeat against China, following an intense 2-2 draw in the tournament's semifinals.

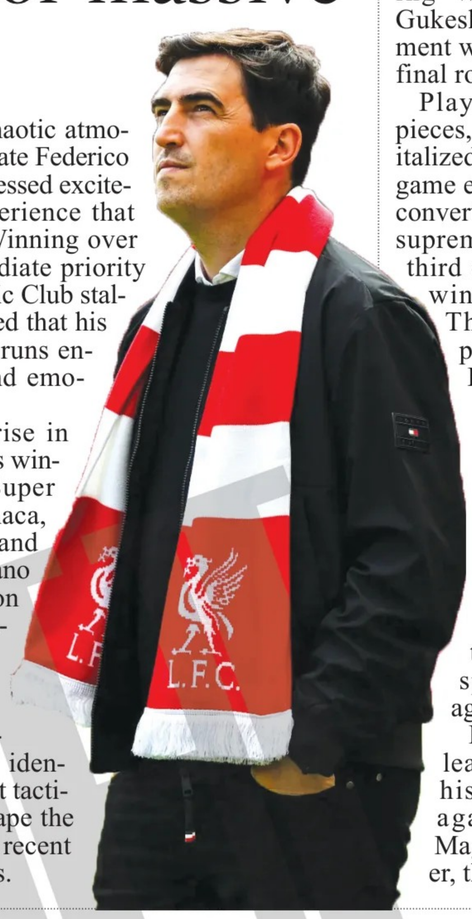
India initiated an aggressive start in the first quarter, capturing an early lead in the third minute. Captain Sweety Kujur provided a brilliant pass into the striking circle to Nousheen Naz, who fired a back-handed shot past the Chinese goalkeeper. However, a defensive error in the 24th minute allowed China's Li ZeYan to seize a loose ball and cleanly hit a field goal to equalize before halftime.

The second half turned into a tactical defensive battle. Indian goalkeeper Mahak Parihar made spectacular saves to deny China's penalty corners, while India failed to convert consecutive opportunities at the opposite end. China momentarily broke the deadlock in the 48th minute when Zhang Yuzheng smashed a rebound shot into the net. Refusing to surrender, India fought back fiercely, and Kiran Ekka successfully converted a critical penalty corner in the 54th minute to tie the game at 2-2.

With no tiebreaker in regular time, the match advanced into a high-stakes shootout. Chinese goalkeeper Liu Xue delivered a stellar performance, blocking three Indian attempts. Sandeepa Kumari emerged as the lone scorer for India, while Lu Tong Tong, Ge Chen, and Guo Jiaxin securely converted their shots to seal China's victory.

Andoni Iraola ready for massive Liverpool challenge

LIVERPOOL



Newly appointed Liverpool head coach Andoni Iraola declared he is completely prepared for the immense pressure of guiding Anfield's rebuilding project ahead of the 2026-27 season.

The 43-year-old Spaniard takes the reins as the successor to Arne Slot. Iraola arrives with high stock after an impressive three-year tenure with Bournemouth, where he masterminded a stunning 18-match unbeaten run to secure a historic sixth-place Premier League finish and the club's first-ever European qualification. Speaking directly to the club's media, Iraola embraced the massive weight of expectation that comes with managing the global giants. "Liverpool gives me the chance to coach top players, and top players give you the chance to fight for titles," Iraola stated firmly. "I understand what is expected here. I'm ready for the challenge."

The Basque manager recalled the intimidating "Anfield effect" from his time in the opposing dugout, specifically remembering a chaotic atmosphere sparked by a late Federico Chiesa goal. He expressed excitement to finally experience that raw home energy. Winning over the fans is an immediate priority for the former Athletic Club stalwart, who emphasized that his football philosophy runs entirely on passion and emotion.

Iraola's gradual rise in management includes winning the Cypriot Super Cup with AEK Larnaca, steering Mirandes, and guiding Rayo Vallecano to La Liga promotion before lighting up England. Observers note his high-intensity pressing style mirrors the club's beloved "heavy metal" identity, offering a perfect tactical blueprint to reshape the squad following the recent exits of veteran icons.

Iyer backed for T20 captaincy over Suryakumar

NEW DELHI

Former national selector Devang Gandhi strongly backs Shreyas Iyer to replace Suryakumar Yadav as India's next T20 International captain, citing his stellar domestic and Indian Premier League leadership credentials.

The Ajit Agarkar-led national selection committee meets in Mumbai to finalize squads for upcoming tours of Ireland and England. The central talking point centers on whether to persist with Suryakumar. Although he successfully led India to defend their T20 World Cup title on home soil in March, the 35-year-old's personal batting form has plummeted. He scored just 270 runs during the recent IPL season and a modest 242 runs in the World Cup. With an eye toward building a long-term strategy for the 2028 Los Angeles Olympics, Gandhi believes the team management must initiate a swift transition.

"Slots are always up for grabs. Surya's batting form is a genuine concern, and I think it is time to move on," Gandhi explained. He described Iyer as the most deserving successor due to his experience guiding Kolkata Knight Riders to an IPL championship, alongside leading both Delhi Capitals and Punjab Kings to tournament finals.

When discussing the vacant vice-captaincy role, Gandhi expressed a strong preference for wicketkeeper-batsman Ishan Kishan over other rising youngsters. He noted that Kishan provides consistency and recently led Jharkhand to domestic success.

Kochhar shines at IGPL Bharath Classic

EL JADIDA

Indian golfer Karandeep Kochhar made a stellar start at the $500,000 IGPL Bharath Classic, carding an impressive six-under-par 66 to anchor himself in a tie for second place after the opening round.

The 26-year-old Chandigarh native bounced back gracefully from a missed cut last week at the Mazagan Beach & Golf Resort.

Kochhar found his rhythm early, firing a sensational streak of four consecutive birdies starting from the second hole. He reached the turn at an exceptional five-under 31 before navigating a challenging, windy back nine with two more birdies and a solitary bogey. Kochhar currently sits just one stroke behind the tournament leader, Thailand's Runchanapong Youprayong, who shot a brilliant seven-under 65. Kochhar shares second place with Australia's Will Florimo and Austria's Nicklas Regner. Reflecting on his turnaround, the four-time winner in India credited rigorous training for his sudden resurgence. "I struggled heavily with my putting last week," Kochhar admitted. "I put in a massive amount of hard work over the weekend and early this week to fix it, and I am incredibly happy that it paid off today."

The leaderboard looks promising for the Indian contingent as fellow countryman Aryan Roopa Anand also forced his way into the top ten. Riding high on the confidence of his recent triumph at the IGPL Congo, Anand carded a solid four-under 68, featuring six birdies, to secure tied-eighth place. Both Indians remain in prime position as the tournament heads into the weekend.

Prabhakaran calls for year round football culture

NEW DELHI

Former All India Football Federation (AIFF) general secretary Shaji Prabhakaran has urged the nation to channel its periodic FIFA World Cup enthusiasm into a sustained, year-round movement for grassroots football development.

The 54-year-old administrative veteran pointed out a frustrating paradox in Indian sports culture.

While the country undergoes a massive football craze every four years, flooding social media, newspapers, and television channels with analysis, this intense engagement rapidly evaporates once the global tournament concludes.

"Football must become part of everyday life in India rather than a four-year carnival," Prabhakaran wrote.

"The same individuals who fervently question why India is not part of the World Cup often remain silent when the Indian national team plays important matches or when domestic clubs face survival challenges."

Prabhakaran highlighted the qualification of smaller nations like Cape Verde and Curaçao for the newly expanded 48-team World Cup as proof that a massive population means nothing without structural competence.

He emphasized that football success is strictly a product of vision, coaching pathways, scouting, and transparent governance.

To bridge the gap between temporary fandom and elite international performance, the former general secretary outlined a roadmap for the country.

FIFA CANCELS TICKETS AFTER WEBSITE GLITCH

NEW DELHI

In a bizarre turn of events, football fans managed to book highly coveted FIFA World Cup 2026 tickets for absolutely nothing due to a sudden website glitch. However, football's world governing body has quickly corrected the error, canceling the free bookings and demanding full payment from the lucky buyers.

FIFA confirmed that approximately 60 supporters received confirmation emails showing a checkout balance of "0 USD" due to a technical payment issue during processing. The pricing blunder originally occurred during online sales on May 21. After discovering the anomaly, FIFA sent out notices stating that all transactions with inaccurate pricing records were officially voided under their general public terms of sale.

To ensure disappointed supporters do not completely miss out on the global showpiece, the governing body has temporarily reserved the exact same seats. The affected fans now have a strict seven-day window to log into their ticketing accounts and pay the correct amount. If the transactions are not completed within this week-long period, the seats will be permanently removed.

This technical mishap adds to growing frustration over escalating tournament costs. Just two months ago, the official resale platform sparked massive outrage after listing four lower-deck tickets behind the goal for the final match at MetLife Stadium for an astonishing $2.3 million each. While FIFA expressed deep regret for the technical inconvenience caused to the fans, it firmly reiterated that market-rate payments are mandatory to secure entry.
